

OVR Eligibility

The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation (OVR) provides vocational services to help people with disabilities prepare for, obtain, and retain employment. The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation is an agency that receives funds from the state and federal government. Vocational Rehabilitation offices are in every state.

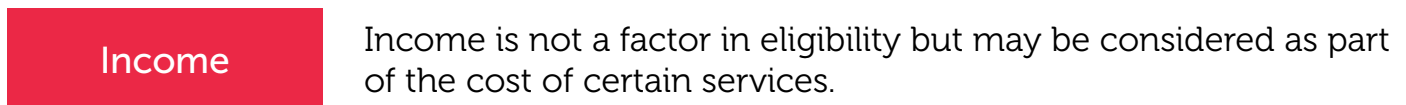

OVR can help you:

To qualify for OVR:

A qualifying disability may be: a medical condition, like diabetes or epilepsy, an orthopedic or other physical condition, a developmental, intellectual, emotional, or learning disability.

The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation is not an emergency services provider. Eligibility decisions will be made within 60 days.

There are no age limits to be eligible for services. A person seeking OVR services must only be of employable age by the time services are completed.

Students are encouraged to seek OVR services during their last two years of high school to prepare for their transition to college or career.

Vocational Rehabilitation Process

Recipients of Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) qualify for OVR services under presumptive eligibility and are considered automatically eligible for services.
